SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 6.

UNION TICKET.

State Senate.

GEN. I. H. DEVAL.

House of Delegates, COL. WH. B. CURTIN. JACOB HORNBROOK. JOSEPH SELL.

THE southern people are arguing that emancipation will prove profitable in the end. We have told them so for years, but they would not believe us. that it has come against their consent is sensible and will lead them to try to make it so. The Charleston Ness dis-covers that there is really no loss of property by emancipation, but only a nake it so. The Charleston No sfer of values; the master formerly self; he is worth just as much as ever, and, regarded as capital, he will pro-luce just as much as ever under right ent. This is sound doctrin and if the late masters will only see it and conform to it, their very selfishness will lead them to treat the negroes well new relation, and make the nost of them by encouraging educa tion and thrift among them.;

Ir the democratic party is not opposed to the extinction of slavery, why do not the democratic legislators of Kentucky, New Jersey and Delaware assent to the abolition amendment? If democratic party accepts the aboliults of the war, why does it, when it has the power, resist the consumma-tion of the work? In this respect the democracy of Pennsylvania is even worse than South Carolina, where sha-very has been declared abolished forever. Will the people trust the party

THE trial of Wirz will have one good esult. It will place upon record where he world can read it, the evidence upon rhich the charge rests, so, that, histoically, it can never hereafter be a matrically, it can never hereafter be a mat-ter of denial or dispute. It will, more-over, show the barbarians of society, that outrages against the humanity of the age cannot be perpetrated in the pride of power without having some day to meet the full measure of accoun-tability for the croel acts.

THE candidates for Congress from the Lynchburg District of Virginia having declared that they cannot take the pre-scribed outh, a number of citizens have, in a card, requested them to withdraw and nominated Hon. John M. Botts who can take the oath.

on the 11th day of January, 1861, the State of Alaama went out of the Union with flying colors. "It would be difficult," says an eye witness, "to describe with accuracy the scenes that presented themselves in and around the Capitol that day. A vast crowd had assembled in the rotunds, eager to hear the announcement of the passage of the ordinance. In the Senate Chamber, within the hearing of the convention, the citizens and visitors had called a meeting and the company was there addressed by several distinguished orators on the great topic which was then engrossing the attention of the convention. The wild shouts and rounds of rapturous applause that greeted the speakers in this impromptu assembly, often broke in upon the ear of the convention, and starlled the grave solemnity that presided over its deliberations. Guns had been made ready to herald the news, and flags had been prepared in various parts of the city, to be hoisted upon a signal.

And the lobby and galleries are not crowded "to suffocation" with the fair daughters of Alabama: to the contrary, sod one woman is to be seen, either in the lobby or galleries—two that were in a moment ago, clad in mourning glided out like dark spectres, before the votes was taken. Four years! And there is no "magnificent flag unfurled in the center of the hall"—no eloquent Yancey to make the presentation, and no wild enthusiasms—but there is a sullengate (Mr. Clark) declares that secession was a de-listing was ephement, and that it is dead—beyond the power of resurree-
